To Whom Ever Concerned:

In my opinion, Microsoft should not be broken up into smaller companies. From where I sit, Bill Gates and Company knows what they are doing to keep the computer industry at the "top". Why should they have to break up just so some other folks can catch up with their technology. Let the others do their own home work and inventions. In this world of trade, trading partners and the like, companies have to be on their toes or else be overtaken by competitors from other parts of the world. We as Americans don't want that.
